

ABI Research today announced a key forecast on the market for near field communication (NFC), the RFID-based technology that will enable a wide variety of contactless commerce via consumer cell phones. By 2012, just under 300 million phones will be equipped with NFC, or about 20 percent of the global market.

Complete Content Not Available in PDF Format See: <http://www.rfidjournal.com/article/view/6712>